COMPANY AND ADVERTISING FLAGS

Advertising flags are one of the simplest and most effective ways to be noticeable. They are also a part of the company's image identification. Adequate exposure and proper preparation of the project allows to highlight the company or catch the attention of the recipient.

For flags we recommend our 100 % spun polyester material SUPREME 160. This is the strongest material for flags you will find on the market and therefore has a longer life in the flagpoles. We also have a cheaper, but still durable material Ecotex 110.

Flags are printed by screen printing (pure colors) or digital dye sublimation (strong and deep colors). With digital printing methods, we can make at already 1 piece at an reasonable cost and the amount of colors do not have influence on the price as when made as traditional screen print.
